Also going to say that during the week. I was messaged by a fabulous. Well, as always 3C our listeners are not regular listeners. They're awesome listeners. Nigel, a very awesome supporter of the show in many ways. Put me onto an out country artist called Pink Williams, who was absolutely awesome. Check out Pink's music. I'll be playing that in the next few weeks or so, queer Progressive this type of stuff. That's what we like on this show and music. Well, I don't even think I'd call it both binary kinds, it's country-western and Bluegrass. But today on the show. Well, we are a smack bang in the middle of celebrate by month, heading up to celebrate by day on Thursday, the 23rd of September and said, I've got a well, I'm not sure. A pan, full of bisexuals are binary Buster of bisexuals on the zoom tool.

You join me today. I'll let everyone go around the screen and introduce themselves in a second. I'm just a quick introduction a little bit about each person. So yes, if you've got questions on multi-gender attraction, / bi plus well, it's it's sort of like to send in your calls now or something like that. So it is my pleasure to welcome a number of people to the show as we go to air old. I'm going to pull one person off.

My screen to say hi first. And then you will do the throw at the handball as they call it. Who won? Who will I might go for? Who wants to go? Anyone want to go first? Who wants to go first? No one. All right, I'll who's microphones on only one person's microphone on and that's Riley.

Hello Sally, how are you? I'm really good Queen and I'm they them and a member of Phi plus Collective Australia. And yeah, but super excited about about this next week. That's right. And can I just check in which original inhabitants lands? You are on today? I am on the lands of the dark people Derek. So you get to you.

First, I you get the option of handballing rugby, passing or whatever, binary sport or non spot. We want to do to someone else tag Amber. You're it. Thanks so much. Hi everyone. I'm Amber my pronouns. Are they them? I am calling in also, from Dar glands. I organized with Sydney by Plus network as well as Phi plus Collective Australia, and I'm so excited to be here today, chatting with you all Bree over to you.

Hi everyone. My name is Brie. My pronouns. Are she her? I am zooming in from gadigal Land like everyone else in this group. I do far too much in far too many spaces, but I'm here today from by chronic events, which is by plus. All the multi-gender book under our umbrella and events that are inclusive spaces for all of us folk. Yeah.

So I will pass over to Lucky lass to Rebecca. Hi, everyone. Rebecca Jimmy against pregnancy here. I'm a little end of the orangery people of the kulin nation. I'm involved with the strain by 5 plus Collective and also the violence Victoria and yes super excited about what's coming up this week. Thank you all yes this week. Well celebrate by plus day and also just declaring

My interest as a member of Phi plus Collective Australia, which is organizing these stand by us to for 2021 by the, by the way, if you have listeners, if you have words for a group of by plus people, with a pan full of binary Buster, you come up with your own. Let's have them and I'll be keeping an eye on all the messages, massive multitasking job today, but when you're surrounded by by plus people, that's a good thing. So really awesome to have everyone.

To discuss by. Plus. I've had a couple of messages in which we will throw 2 at in due course, but let's start again anyone who wants to go first. What's, and then we'll throw it around. What's the importance of these? Stand By Us conference? What does it mean to each of you from last year? And as we head into this years,

Bree.

So this conferences are really, really big deal for me, all of my involvement with by plus things started in 2018 because it was by plus visibility day. And I sat at home and I couldn't find anything to do. And I cried to my pal and then 2018 was, when we started seeing in our within our city, a little bit more.

Happening and started finding out all the things around Australian up and since then every this week or this month, every year is just such a wonderful time of feeling visible, which is something that I hadn't felt before this. So, and then the virtual conference means people all around Australia, no matter where you are, get to feel that that love and visit visibility that has just meant so much to me. So yeah.

Yeah, it's it's a really cool thing. Well, yeah connection is so important. Before we I throw the question to another of our panelists and we do want to send our sort of get well by Vibes to Anthony who was due to join us today. And whilst we're all on parts of this continent. Now known as roughly Melbourne, Melbourne, Sydney and surrounds.

We do have in by plus Collective, Australia, people from everywhere, Brisbane by Network. We have a lovely 26 year old person from Darwin, Misty, from by plus Collective Perth, a by plus Community Perth, I beg your pardon, what's on your face on Friday, on 3cr? So we're, it's not just the Southeastern Corner, Jen from Tasmania, a veteran by Advocate, and Misha and Gail from South Australia. So it is trying to represent as much of this continent and nearby Islands or nearby Island.

As possible. So Neen, what does stand by us? I mean for you, I sorry, I beg your pardon Riley.

Shall I just quickly extra explain that, to, to the listeners to the listeners. Very, very recently. I have changed my name amongst my by the by plus Collective, but it's not all official yet. So my name is still appears as my given name to an aunt named Chapman. So Stand, By Us means an amazing opportunity to reach people who feel like they don't have community. And

Is an incredible opportunity, it's four days of packed programme, which cover wellness and music, and social events, and educational events and events. That really our meetups and for people that are educational as well. And the space is just so important for bisexual, pansexual Omni sexual, and multi-gender attracted people. So they don't feel like they're on their own. It's

There's a whole wide world. There's a whole wide group of us out there, and we're here for all of the community as well. Definitely. And we would add that last year Khan, and some of the forums panels and we were joined from people from Beyond this continents that when it's, as it's now called a country and from all over and of course, anyone listening anywhere over the world. If you have the right amount of caffeine or whatever to join in from your timezone.

Given that the events are largely daytime and evening across this continent, please feel free to do so register. Standby us.com data, you look at your events. And yes, it is. A packed programme in the words of two comedians from the 70s. It's hello from me and it's good night from them or something like that. And but what does stand by US mean to you?

Army, stand by us, really is about an opportunity to learn connect and celebrate. So I think in a time like right now, when so many of us are in lockdown and really, really desperate to connect with one. Another Stand By Us is an opportunity for us to get together with community and do exactly that. We've got such a wide range of incredible events for people to learn about other folks experiences.

For people to celebrate who they are and really to provide an opportunity for people to get to know each other. So, there's a lot in there and I mean this conference really, really means the world to me and I'm so so honored that we get to bring it. Bring it out again for a second year bring it bring it out of the pan. So to speak Rebecca. What does it the conference mean for you?

Well, it means that we are voices heard, and I think that's really important because in so many lgbtiq, A+ conferences. Bisexual people get like an hour and a half and as the community that's insufficient time to talk about the things that matter to us. We are not prioritized as in these events and the like so this is a chance for us to get together and have our voices heard and to share knowledge and information with each other across the communities. Broadly. So we really get to Learn from each other and share that with anyone who comes along to listen and participate differently. So we need that representation. And it's, it's so bizarre given that by plus is the biggest sexual orientation under the right and / romantic orientation under the rainbow yet. There's this constant or has been and continues to some degree. Let's say to be this constant iterator. That is just so,

Le dating. And so, you know, it just it was it's just such an energy boost and I might whilst I'm hosting today. I will perhaps throw in my own sort of response. If I was being asked the question, it is just that sense of connection and strength and last year just as, you know, as you said Rebecca, I know last so-called rainbow events. I've felt raised last year was just the strongest. I'd felt in my by / pan sense of identity. And it was just it

It now feels pretty unshakable actually, which has been really, really awesome. One of our awesome listeners remembering 3cr including out of the pan, doesn't have regular listeners. We have awesome listeners. Has come in mentioned that Tessa Thompson had is bisexual and popular in the USA also has also asked a lot about the Met Gala event where there's been lots of queer and trans people, which talks intersectionality, but you know, we touched on how many events there.

Our. And well again, I'll go do the go around this time. I'll start with Riley pick an event or two. You don't have to choose, of course, because we're by plus that, you know, it just mean anything to you, totally intuitive and random go for it.

Yes. Start Mike a bisexual pansexual person chooses very difficult out of the now, 25 online events and will live vicariously through the one in-person event. Next Sunday, for me. There are gosh, there are so many. But the three major ones that I am really dedicated to and going to, you know, be listening in the Keynote.

Speech. The First Nations keynote speech, that our is so important to communities all over the continent, but it is a major priority and focus for by plus Collective Australia and for all of the networks and groups that make up by plus Collective, Australia is to have active and meaningful representation and in not just inclusion, but

Active working with our first Nations communities. So the First Nations lgbtiq Community is not very well represented and there isn't a lot of air time for for them. So it was really important for us to to make that a focus of this year's events. I would also say helping a friend out Misha with by +. Sa do a music. Amusing evening on Thursday night, which is actually a bit of a wind down for the first day of very, very full events, and I'm really looking forward to that. Misha has some original songs to to present in that 90 minutes to hours and a couple of guest artists and also just some really beautiful prose and and discussion. I think it'll be a lovely chill out session for us. I know you said just pick

Like two or three, but it's really hard. There's yoga on certain went Friday, Saturday, and Sunday mornings. And then the next event, which is, it's a particular one on the calendar for me, is by lines. But what I will do, is, I'll let, I've not let, it's not about allowing anyone. But Amber if you want to have a bit of a chat to that, that might be good. Go for him, but

Thanks so much Riley. I'm also really excited for the First Nations. Keynote. I think it's a really, really incredible space where we'll get to to have conversations about ongoing impacts of colonization and what it actually means to be an indigenous queer person. And I'm really, really privileged that and honored that we get to that, we've created a space for those conversations. I'm also really, really

Good for the session. It's all about pronouns, which will be a space for us to talk about are many many identities outside of the binary. And that's got a stellar Stellar panel of which I am part of. And I am so thrilled for my lines every year by lines. Brings me so much joy, and that's exactly what we're talking about this year in by lions, Joy. I think that in many spaces we

Focus a lot on our challenges and the health disparities we experience and I think there's a time and a place for that but I'm really excited that this year. We're making room for bylines to focus on Joy because there really is so many incredible things about being bi plus and so I cannot wait to be in that space with folks to talk about all the wonderful things that contribute to our lives. Absolutely. I've before we throw Throw debris, want to want to reinforce really affirm that that, yes, there are challenges not of our own making in the by plus communities most of the time. But you know, there is so much by plus awesomeness out there. And this is what I love about loved last year about stand by us and I'm getting excited. And having to remember to breathe right now to talk about this Bree. You've got something to bounce off Amber and I'm sure I'm, well, I won't put it. I won't assume anything we never assume.

I think now communities talk about your favorite events as well. So yeah, I was so eager to jump in and just really support and show my excitement for bylines. This this year. I'm, of course. I'm so excited about the many events, but I recently, spoke in a pedestrian about the need for more positive representation. You know, it's so important for us to Advocate and speak about the Ages that we go through but I just love it when I see articles and media and representation that is just about the awesomeness of by plus identity and and that it is really cool getting to experience life this way. So talking about the joys. Just something that really brings me. Joy, so really really want to encourage people to to join in there.

And I think it's really important on it on a, you know, week or month or you know, we we love as much time as we can to Chad by glass to have that that time to really celebrate, which is what this week is all about. Absolutely. Yeah, the joy in your voice came through there. And well, there has to be a pun that we should joy in in together and once again,

Last but not least, Rebecca.

It is really hard to choose amongst all the things that are happening during the Forum is to which like I'm most looking forward to, I'm really looking forward to the poetry slam poetry reading event. We're having towards the end, which is has a fantastic pan for a name by ambach pentameter, which was not put up by me. It was thought up by somebody else who was much much more clever. And I think that's going to be greater chance to hear from

Our community about the problems that they write about themselves, whatever. What if you happy sad angry in between. But yeah, it's going to be just a great space to hear from each other. And I am also looking for, I'm also really looking forward to the yoga because I just think that's going to be a great space to do yoga in amongst the by affirming environment. What I've never done before, and I'm really looking forward to it. Absolutely.

And sort of Brie has just chipped in a new, you know, you can, you can declare interest and on this one, real and just sort of your mentioned by conic for Great Performances, as well. Which I know, well, is it you I wouldn't I don't know if I'd call it your by b or something like that, but, you know, that will be awesome. It was fantastic last year and I'll come back to something that

I'm out of it as well. And I know you you might have to do some technological rearrangement in a second, but quickly sneak in on some sort of bike on what by chronic is for you. As the mighty organizer. Yes. My clinic has been I think you got it, right? My bike by be it.

Like a baby, it takes up her a lot of my time, but it brings me joy and by Connick as I mentioned. It's about inclusive events at the moment. Generally. I'm gadigal land. Also known as a Sydney with dreams to move around the country and I think a virtual space. Is it a time we can bring it, bring it around the country, but this year, our virtual event will be showcasing.

A whole array of amazing performances, but we're also having discussions about inclusive nightlife and inclusive, queer nightlife, and what that looks like and so will be really spotlighting. Some of the other events that take place around this land, to really just look at what makes this face inclusive, what makes us feel safe in these environments, you know, I think I'm not the only person who at times

X goes to queer events and and maybe doesn't feel like they're, they're really the best space for me. And I will be talking a lot about what makes a space inclusive and getting that feedback from people tuning in. And also looking at the intersections of creating inclusive spaces with that that focus on nightlife. So, we've got some really awesome people coming in a jealousy from unicorn.

Is joining us. Unicorns is just I think the just the gold standard of inclusivity. So that would be really lovely. And we've also got Michael who organized by plus events in the early two, thousands named by diversity. So we will be chatting what by plus experience looked like in the early 2000s. There was some really significant challenges.

At those times. But Mike was because, you know, created those safe spaces, even, you know, we're looking at about 20 years ago. So we'll be hearing about that. And and also quiz of joy is another wonderfully inclusive event here on gadigal land which is all about creating spaces for Trans non-binary identities or be looking at. Yeah, what there have been is about and

How other spaces can can take that on? And lastly, we've got the wonderful Anna from by and Prejudice who is also doing a wonderful event during this panel. So during this forum about creating spaces, that maybe aren't that loud party atmosphere and and some of us are love the term. Shy by. We want to have maybe some smaller intimate spaces.

Has and talking about making sure that, that by plus nightlife includes some of that as well. So yeah, lots to talk about some incredible performances. We've got Penelope Pettigrew, who by Plus app, bisexual identifying woman, who was recently on The Voice, D & Tie, who is an incredible Asian performer. Definitely check out some of his work amongst many others. So shown in have a day.

And so I've got some DJ's bring in some beats and join in on this conversation about inclusivity and envisioning. What we want the future to look like in this space. Definitely definitely and well, mentioning things sort of from earlier times though. I'll declare my interest in relation to the age of by plus an intergenerational panel, which I'm sort of a Dy organizer. The Fabulous JC Young by and Men from Darwin is leading this one got Kathy. Never know and Gene reprimand. We've got. So in terms of the age range, we've got people in all of their 20s, 30s 40s, 50s and 60s. And so this will be really cool to get this perspective because we've discussed have things progressed for by plus. Well, you know, it's may not be ultra, you know, sort of specific research, but at least give us a range of perspectives and back to, right?

Because you have one other event that you definitely want to plug and then we've got some questions and comments coming in from listeners in a second.

For sure. Thanks Ali. I'm going to plug every single event that we've got for selling a house for the 23rd of September, right through the 26th. There's an extra online event, a couple of days later. And there's, of course, that Perth Community, by plus Perth community that are having a picnic. There are actually able to see each other on the Sunday. What I would really love to let people know about is just a something that came out of standby us last year. I ran a session.

Estimate up session called Boulder. So it's four by pan only and MGA people around the continent and around the world to join in. Who are 40 plus and we get together once a month. Normally and that was born out of last year's conference and we're running a special Saturday session for stand by us this year. So that should be brilliant. And it

It basically is particularly unstructured. It is moderated. But we basically just sit and chat and talk about all things that life affects us. When we're a bit more mature, being bisexual and pansexual omnisexual, and MGA. Every story is not the same. Every story is valid, but sometimes it's really fantastic to sit with a group of people your own age. Absolutely just gives that extra sense of connection.

And you know, which we need, you know, we need sort of places to just build foundation. So we can venture out further and further into the world and when you've got that sort of safe base, safe space. It is really, really important. Now, this is live radio and I will mention that there are despite the importance of by plus people. And there are other things going on in Victoria. There is a press conference happening, but we'll keep an eye on that as well. But some water.

Get to some of our listeners comments. There are quite a few the and I'll juggle these around anyone who wants to respond to this one. The fabulet one of our awesome listeners wombat has come in via the email on out of the pan 855 at gmail.com quote in planning the conference. How did you balance the social content with the talk and presentation content? Do you find the social type sessions as well? Subscribe as the other content end quote.

Over to anyone who wants to respond to that, as one of the people who organized the, some of the social content there. So the meetups, and the quiet spaces to hang out. I just, I looked at what worked last year and we did that. There were some that were really well topics because we obey some around topics, which I thought would help guide conversations and the type of people who are coming in and they're not as well. Subscribe to some of the events.

And that's okay because people it's a very packed calendar and people need a chance to have a break. And if you're in lockdown, they're having a break might be coming along too. And the social events to talk about your pets or which type of games you like or what books you like to read, or it might be going for a walk. So, you know, they're quieter events and they've if three people come, I consider it a success because I just want people to have a space where they can just chat about

Things. I love. Absolutely, that's a fair call. Who else wants to bounce in? On that one. Amber has popped the hand up. Think that's a really great question, and I think that we're always going to be learning more and more about how to strike that balance. And I think the incredible thing to me about having such a variety of events from talks panels, to social events, is that people get a variety of things to engage with. So you

So if you're someone who is really really looking for connection and really no yearning to show off your pet or you know, see other people's pets. There's a session for you. So I love that. We've got lots of different ways to engage and connect and remembering that that connection doesn't have to look the same across the board. So I love that question. Well, yeah, bye-bye plus are as diverse as the rainbow communities and as The Veranda versus as

It's Raleigh as an organizer for the event, just to sort of focus on on how we got to the mix of events that we did by plus Collective. Australia was established last year when lockdown was coming into force, and we wanted to support each other as networks around the continent. And then we have this great, you know brainstorm idea to run a conference online. Yay.

Doing it again this year. So it started with a conversation again in February of this year and we go out to our networks. We think about what it is, the work that we've been producing in the in the individual and local networks that we have. We talked about it as a collective. We balance out, we put abstracts together and discuss what we believe the community might.

Up to hear about. We look at what's current in media as well in conversation. And then we basically sit down and put sessions together, that seem to run, Wells that go back to back or follow each other really well, but we always try and make sure that there are a mix of different types of interests that are from Academia and studies, but also community building events.

And that balance that's balanced out with the social events. We hope and we're always really, really happy to hear feedback from our community as on our website and also stand by us.com. But also get in contact with some of the other organizations and we can keep all of that in mind. Definitely. Now, I might just repeat this question for Bree who I think was having some tech issues for a second. Our listener one back came in with the question quote in.

Adding the conference and I'm just sorry. I'm going to have to say, tongue-in-cheek planning. What is this planning of which you speak seriously to start that quote again in planning the conference. How did you balance the social content with the talk and presentation content? Do you find Social type sessions as well as well? Subscribe as other content end. Quote, Bri your thoughts. If your fm. Yeah, I definitely do. I think this is a balance that by Connick really wanted to get right.

So we've we've come in, we're bringing the DJs and performances of got dragged with. But poetry, we've got, you know, singing. But I really big part of by Connick is also to have discussions and if we in person, we'll interview our performers and, you know, be talking about what's going on for them. And we also love having that feeling that interaction with people that

We get in passing. And so when we jumping on Virtual, it's really important to us. That we keep that social aspect. We don't want to just have a, you know, you're tuning in and you're watching, but you don't feel connected. And so I think really, you know, wanting to strike that balance of getting people feeling like they're part of something. Can I mean in in terms of subscribing?

We spoke a little bit last time we met about the what you know what we're seeing coming in and I think there's a really mixed bag. We've got all sorts of numbers coming in all over the place and I think there's an interest in all sorts of different spaces. Yeah. It's it's a, it's a hard balance to strike. But I think it's an important one. The main thing is we're all about inclusion and

I want to make sure that the people that are tuning in at feeling a part of every single event. We've got taking place. Yeah, definitely'. Now a little while ago, I asked about how the sort of term for a collection of by plus people and someone over on the by plus Collective Australia page in response to this year of the bear has said a pandemonium of bisexuals. I think that's pretty like that.

So we'll have to vote on that. So, yep. We'll go with that. Gosh. What is something? We've had at the whole heap of queries? I'm just met having to multitask here. Hoffer. One of our awesome listeners is said, queer events aren't for everyone, great point and I think we do increasingly need spaces spaces for you know, as I like to sometimes put it all the dots of the intersection of had. I wouldn't I think one that Still. We've got a cover, which gets good coverage in the trans and gender diverse communities, but I see every reason for it to parallel in by plus is by plus and neurodivergent, which is something we've got to perhaps look at next year, but we'll throw in as much as we can around all the other panels. Now, not quite sort of sort of related, but there's been an event that's not necessarily by, although there was representation there called the Met Gala over in the US.

I swear, they're not sure if people saw this. There were lots of snazzy, snazzy, costumes, and all sorts of things. Some people misappropriating a bit, but it also talks about how important a little sort of linked to questions from Hopper here. How important is pop culture. We've sort of touched on this how important is pop-culture significant to representation in 21 and perhaps linking it to what your knowledge is of the Met Gala as well. Anyone who wants to go, go for it.

I must just, I must just say I am crushing on little known as X, my sister and I were having a conversation the other day. We were like is is Loom as the biggest celebrity in the world right now, you know, we're not seeing appearances from the typical ones at the moment. And there he is. With his three outfit changes. Each queerer than the other and oh, my goodness it.

It's really cool. And just this morning. I saw a little known as promoting condom use within his videos and his Instagram and really using that platform, which is really cool. Also, just seeing the range of gender expression on the Met. Gala. Red carpet was really cool. We're seeing kind of these half, dress half pant, suit situations, taking place.

Case, which we have really enjoyed. Yeah, some hot, just so much representation and just seeing, you know, so many, so many queer people, a lot of transfers work, a lot of the wonderful actors actresses ACT people from pies really, really coming into that a list as well.

Yeah, I think it was enjoyable. It had its limitations. It's definitely a bit to discuss there. But I think it's very, very cool what we're saying? Yep. Well, you've got a mutual fan club with a guy now. Awesome list and a half. Look who's a big littleness fan that he's amazing and also throwing a comment here about trans and representation Elliot page who is just so

So awesome, quote from hopefully here, the green flower on the lapel of Elliot Pages. As Balenciaga suit paid, homage to quit poet and playwright Oscar Wilde, according to dr. Andrew Larrick a historian who runs Oscar Wilde tours. The green Carnation became associated with wild as a subtle signal of his sexuality and it's also this used Elliott Pages. First Met Gala since coming out as trans. I be a fun fact there. And yeah, Elliot page. I just think has been, you know, we talking intersections for a second.

I just think is given so much representation to trans men, / trans mask when often they, perhaps don't get the representation. They need and deserve. Even perhaps sometimes I sometimes think non-binary and agender get more discussion than our trans mask brothers. And apparently Little Miss album got a five-star review in the herald Sun. Well, they even managed to overcome the Murdoch media, overcame their bias. So that's impressive impressive.

As well. I'm just going to multitask here. And I have the stand by us sort of page up. Once again, stand by us and stand. Biu s.com will one word other events. All here's a couple of important ones where we drill into some intersectionality. It's all about pronouns, right + by + experiences. It for HIV, prevention and Healthcare. And one that I know.

Anthony, who was going to be with us, would have loved to discuss queering relationships, discussions on by plus and polyamory. Anyone have any thoughts on any of those because there's some intersections to use my again to use that phrase. We need to make sure every square millimeter of the intersection is covered.

Anyone have any thoughts on those or other intersections and other panels that come to mind Riley?

I started by plus experience of HIV prevention and health care has had an extraordinary amount of work done by a colleague in and a couple of colleagues and a group of pretty incredible people this year. So to bring it to a focus to have a spot light Shone on it, to be able to discuss the despero the disparity in Health Services, the language that's used and the research that's done on HIV prevention. And Health Care is often non-inclusive and sometimes very alienating for by plus people by plus men, women and non-binary and trans people. So this particular session is it's been presented previously.

This year. I'm Amber. You'll have to correct me if it's one or two times professionally, this great. Thank you this year and the feedback and the exposure. For this particular session is so incredibly important to the community, but it's also incredibly important to health care workers and government departments because we can put our hand up all the time and say that we're not being represented.

Then getting information and getting the right research done. It's almost like a bit of an intervention within Healthcare to make sure that they use inclusive language and they mean it so and also that they have considerations across the spectrums of sexuality. And as we said earlier, in the program bisexuality, do makeup does make up the highest percentage in the rainbow so it can no longer be ignored. So,

So, I really highly recommend the by past experiences of HIV HIV prevention. And Healthcare. It does sound heavy, but it is real and it is really important. Absolutely. Absolutely. Yeah, and so yet many many intersections to sort of come across there and also just going to The Wider World a second. The roadmap is continuing, as we as announced in Victoria.

With gradual reopening. But as for a multitasking is reaching its peak there, but thanks for the update. Some hopefully who was also Amazed by the Huns support of little nurse. And also one person's costume at the Met. Gala was made by a trans Creator, which I'm proving, of course, how creative binary busting people are. And there's also a lot of discussion, you know, sort of on this panel on this, for stand by us that so much of the bi plus, and

Trans and gender diverse communities, sort of have this. Jen - Mentor approach if we can throw in some Jewish stuff as well there. But, you know, it's sort of because we both sort of have to get past very limiting ideas about gender. There's I think there's lots of stuff on the on the on the on the if throughout the conference that sort of comes to that intersection as well. And you know Sis Sis by plus people trans and gender diverse by plus people both equally important, but

Yeah, there's that sort of potential for double marginalization which stops the double magnificence. It's really important that we do some Ultra, binary busting throughout the conference. So lots of great panels like nervo and others Amber.

Something that I really loved about what comes to the front of the stand by us conference is that there isn't one way to be by plus. And I think that comes through in the variety of sessions that we've got, and in all of the spaces where we highlight those intersections. And to me, that, that really

Reminds me of the power of authentic representation and being able to be in spaces that are by and for community. And I think there's a lot of power in that and so that's something I'm really really looking forward to in this upcoming week. Definitely. I think there is a huge, a huge range of those spaces and just to sort of throw in more of the sort of social events. We've got just having a look at the program at stand.

By us.com, we have games and pets as well as Rebecca mentioned books as well, as well as the by music and musings. And yes, I buy and ambach pentameter. Yep, lots of stuff in there and of well next Sunday. It's going to have to come to an end. Damn it, but there will be a for a wrap-up celebration as well. And just, if you're

Just feeling like you can't immediately sort of leave. You can join the declaring my interest, The Stand by the usual. I'm sorry. Not usual. The standing by plus Discussion Group run by by lights, Victoria on Tuesday the 28th. So it is Mega huge. Wow. We're just about out of time. Yes. In some sessions will be recorded and go up on YouTube later. If you miss them on the stand, by us Channel, you can check out.

Some of the panel panels from last year for from last year and they'll be closed captioning and as well with thanks to Riley's Tech investigative skills. We've now figured got a better way of doing that than last year and something of great importance. If you are planning to come, whether it's to one event, or however, many of you don't want to have to choose, please check out the safe space guidelines that are on the stand by Us website, everyone needs to

Safe, look. After yourself. The you know, what, now, I'm self-care that works for. You think about consent, of course, value, all aspects of diversity, positivity only, no negativity be aware of what's going on in the background of your own space, you know, sort of, yes, there's all sorts of you're on mute. You're not on mute type of things. But background noise is all those sorts of things. So we, you know, I'm

Thing to make it accessible and welcoming and warm. Even more than safe is really, really important. Wow. We're just about at the end. I think I've got, you know, sort of, you know, sort of most of the comments that have come in of being covered from Hoffler. And one bad. I'm just madly checking, all the sort of the, the various forms. Actually. I'd better just Over in Tweeter land to see if anything came in there, but I'm also just saying, a few words to make sure that I can give people some final thoughts before the program before we have to leave and Make Way for freedom of species. So, if you have any sort of take home points about anything, the elevator speech as they say, Riley wants to dive in there, please go for it. Riley.

I'm going to dive in everybody and say, please look up, stand by us.com, the links for tickets either on Facebook or on Eventbrite. I hope that's okay to mention those two. So this is please, please register, and getting it. Seems everyone registers that last weekend and they work out what's coming on next week to week days and two days over the weekend. And we really look forward to all of you being there.

Absolutely, check out that. Also, lots of resources for around the states and territories. Anyone else want to jump in with final thoughts.

No one else. Well, Rebecca, I'll just very quickly. We are doing this for everybody, not just for ourselves. So I think, you know, it's a lot of work for us to give all of this to everybody else and it's free. It's the best thing about it. It's all online. You, you've got an internet connection. You can participate. It's free. You don't have to pay anything. So if you've got the time, please come and join us.

Amazing. Absolutely, you know, with that it's, you know, which is helpful for we know that sadly people in queer communities can experience greater degrees of anxiety and that sort of thing. But at the moment, you know, the thing, one thing that has come out of, if you can have the internet and live, learnt your Zoom, you can tap in and you don't, of course, you don't have to participate in any way you can just, you know, watch and listen which we mentioned earlier, which is just giving that sense of connection as well.

And wow Braves got some for some thoughts as well. Yeah, I think in terms of that, you know jump in camera on camera off whatever works for you. If you also have any requests or suggestions about the way that we could be a bit more inclusive or or make things a little bit more accessible for you getting contact. I believe our email is on our stand by Us.com website, always eager to hear how we can accommodate everyone's needs best. So, yeah, reach out. I'm sure we can quickly do some last-minute planning and pull things together because that is what we are very good at. I think here getting that that last-minute changes in is is something that we yeah, we've done pretty well that. So feel free to to reach out.

Out. I think he's a big one as well. Definitely and just one in the words of say well, we'll be intergenerational per second in the words of a childhood hero as the ostrich. It's nice to say thank you. We've got to thank Phoenix dark and J for their work on the website. It is really important. You know, it looking pretty glamorous there. But that's where we have to leave it because we are out of time as I as we head to freedom of speech.

Seas and talking all things, animal. Advocacy, Rebecca Riley, Amber, and Brie. What a joy to use that word. It can to have you all on today and just been absolutely amazing. I'm looking forward to it. I've put in my annual leave pass from work for, from Thursday and Friday. I will be there looking forward to seeing you there. And yes, I know what I'm going to Mention, you know, allies, please come along learn ask ask the questions to be better. Allies is really important as well. Yes, it's first and foremost for by plus, but allies come along learn and, you know, see how what you can do in your organization, or as individuals on a day-to-day basis. Thanks to Hoffler and to, wombat for their input into the show today. Thanks again, to save you, an ideal for their comments late on last week's show,
